PLAYING THE GAME

Refer to the section THE GAME OF BASEBALL for a short overview of the rules of baseball.

When the game begins, the visiting team will be up to bat. The Player 1 controller will be the home team, and the Player 2 controller will be the visiting team. If the players wish to customize the game modes, or select a pinch hitter or relief pitcher, please refer to the GAME CONTROLS section of this manual on page 19.

The A button swings the bat for the batting team, and pitches the ball for the pitching team. For more information on the controls used during the game, please refer to the GAME CONTROLS section of this manual on page 19.

An interesting feature of the game is that the size of the player's head will grow if his stats are high. For example, if a star player is an outfielder, the player's head will be a little larger than that of the regular players. This will be a signal that this player is the one to throw the ball to. During the LUCKY 7 (7th inning stretch), all of the team players will receive full powerup.

THE PLAY SCREEN

On the play screen, the stats are divided into four areas.

The upper left corner holds the game score and innings. On the first line, the first number is the number of the inning being played. The letter to the right of the "i" can be a T or B, for Top or Bottom of the inning. (The visiting team bats at the top of the inning and the home team bats at the bottom of the inning). On the second line, the red bar under the team letter signifies which team is up to bat. The score is in between the team names.

The green box in the upper right hand corner is the pitcher's information. The large letter is the team's name. The line below is the Er stat, which stands for the ERA (Earned Runs Average). When the pitcher is new, the ERA is a line of dashes, because there are no previous runs to calculate. Below the ERA is the pitcher's name.

Right below the pitcher's stats are the game stats. The B symbol counts the number of BALLS thrown. The next line is the S symbol, for STRIKES. The final line has an O, for OUTS. Note the dot to the right of each letter. The dots are black at the beginning, and they will light up to the letter's color as the game progresses. Ex: When two OUT dots are lit, that means that there are two outs.

The green box below the game stats shows the Batter's stats. The top letter in this box is the team name. The next line is the Batter's Lineup Position (Bt). Below is the Batting Average (Av) followed by the number of homeruns hit by the batter. The last line is the batter's name.

The diamond in the lower left corner shows which bases are occupied. (NOTE: A flashing helmet indicates an intent to steal a base.)

THE GAME OF BASEBALL

The main path of the field is a square path which starts at HOME PLATE, towards the bottom of the field. This path area is known as the BASEBALL DIAMOND. The home plate is where the batter attempts to hit the baseball with a wooden or metal bat.

On both sides of home plate are two rectangular areas. These are known as the BATTER'S BOXES. The batter must stand in either box when he is up at bat.

The ball is thrown by the pitcher, who is on the PITCHER'S MOUND at the center of the baseball diamond. The ball must cross home plate. If the ball does not cross home plate, it is called a BALL. Four balls entitles the batter to advance to 1st base. If the ball hits the batter and he does not swing at the ball, it is considered an immediate WALK, and the batter advances to 1st base.

If the ball crosses home plate, the ball must be hit by the batter, or it is considered a STRIKE. If the ball crosses the batter's box, and the batter swings at it, it is also considered a STRIKE. Three strikes will call the batter out.

If the ball is hit by the batter, the ball must travel in the upper part of the field. This upper area is comprised of the baseball diamond and the OUTFIELD areas. Please note the two FOUL LINES from home plate to 1st base, and from home plate to 3rd base. If the ball goes below the foul lines, it is called a FOUL. The first two fouls count as strikes. However, the third strike cannot be a foul ball.

If the ball is hit in a fair area, the batter is entitled to become a RUNNER. The runner runs around the baseball diamond in a counter-clockwise direction. At each corner of the baseball diamond is a BASE, which is a square bag usually filled with sand. The runner must step on each base, going from 1st base to 2nd base, 2nd base to 3rd base, and 3rd base to home plate. When the runner successfully completes the entire circuit back to home plate, his team scores one (1) point. This is called a RUN. The team with the highest score at the end of the game is the winner.

If the ball is caught by a player from the other team on the field, the runner is called OUT. If the ball hits the ground, the runner is entitled to run to the next base. The runner can be tagged out if he's not on any of the bases by an opposing player who has the ball. Each base is considered safe territory.

If a runner is safe on any base, the runner can run to the next base when a new batter has hit a fair ball. The same rules above apply to the next batter who is at home plate. There can only be one runner to a base. This is called BASES LOADED.

Any runner can attempt to run to the next base at any time. However, the pitcher can throw the ball to his teammate so that he can attempt to tag the runner out. If the runner successfully advances to the next base, this is called a STEAL.

If the ball is hit past the outfield into the spectator stands, it is called a HOMERUN. All runners on the bases complete the path to home plate and a score. If the bases are loaded, four runs will be scored.

If 3 outs are called, the teams will change sides. All runners will come back and take their positions in the field. No runs can be scored by the runners at this time.

When both teams have completed a change, it is called an INNING. Nine innings usually comprise a game. However, if both teams have the same score at the end of the 9th inning, it is considered a TIE GAME. The game will continue. However, if the tie is not broken by the end of the 12th inning, the game will end in a tie game.
